	Project objective:  The main objectives of the EMMAG project is to provide the appropriate tools and mechanisms to Maghreb partners in order to enable them to respond to their socio-economical needs through international higher education cooperation. EMMAG aims to: 1. Improve the adaptation mechanisms of Maghreb institutions to their national and regional development needs and to respond to international challenges. 2. Contribute in the development of transparency, gender equality and non-discrimination in their educational systems, 3. Better and reinforce the cooperation of Maghreb and European universities, 4. Contribute to improve the employability of third country institutions to alleviate poverty and increase economic growth. 5. Exchange competences for a better international efficiency in the implementation of international mobility programmes.
	Brief description:  The EMMAG consortium is composed of 20 universities, 11 from the targeted countries: Algeria (3), Tunisia (3), Morocco (4) and Egypt (1), and 9 from Europe: France (3), Italy (2), Spain (2), Czech Republic (1) and Grece (1), and 17 associates belonging to public bodies from Europe and from Maghreb, private companies established on both sides of the Mediterranean sea, and European associations. This very well experienced and very motivated consortium will offer an excellent background to foster institutional cooperation. In the spirit of greater cooperation between partners, a maximum number of exchange mobility has been calculated respecting the conditions of the call. The mobility for this project will involve 259 individuals, 200 for Maghreb to Europe and 59 from Europe to Maghreb. Among the 259 grants, 92 are undergraduate candidates (74 M to Eu), 61 are masters candidates (45 from M to Eu), 38 are doctorate candidates (29 from M to Eu), 28 are post-doctorate candidates 19 from M to Eu) and 40 are staff (33 from M to Eu). The flow of students will be regulated ensuring a balanced distribution amongst partners. The EMMAG project will enable the participating students to get a mobility experience and to be trained in the best European universities, thus they will have the required skills to assume the needed position in the international business. Moreover, the international experience in the fields of economic and business and specific trainings offered by EMMAG's institutions will foster the entrepreneurship culture among the target groups. Thus EMMAG contributes to the mutual enrichment of societies, promoting mobility, and contributing towards the development of human resources.
