Dissemination and Exploitation of Programme results
What is D&E?

- Dissemination is a planned process of providing information on the results of programmes and initiatives to key actors. This involves spreading the word about the project successes and outcomes as far as possible.

- Exploitation is:
  (a) a planned process of transferring the successful results of the programmes and initiatives to appropriate decision-makers in regulated local, regional, national or European systems, on the one hand, and
  (b) a planned process of convincing individual end-users to adopt and/or apply the results of programmes and initiatives, on the other hand.
Why is D&E important?

Key principles and objectives:

• Transparency
• Impact
• Inspiration

Summary

AFTERMATCH project tackles the situation in which athletes experience an high risk of a traumatic and unproductive exit from the sport's world. In other words, the project pays attention to the last part of an athlete's career, especially for non-professional athletes or for athletes not equipped with a safe "professional parachute" during the jump into the labour market. The main focus is on "pre-emptive exit strategy planning adoption", on "evaluation and raising awareness about useful sport-related soft skills" and finally on "innovative exit-oriented training modules to be included in traditional institutionalized training paths". For these reasons, AFTERMATCH considered the meso-dimension of dual career (e.g., trainers, coaches, sport managers, etc.) the actors with the more relevant role in creating the conditions for a successful exit strategy of the athlete from his/her sport career. So said, AFTERMATCH project contributed to increase the knowledge about Dual Career through a small scale survey about the situation of dual career in Europe and in particular in 5 European South - Eastern Countries (Italy, Slovenia, Bulgaria, Poland and Greece), which provided a solid base for the development of a new intervention

The AFTERMATCH Survey

Description
The AFTERMATCH project focuses on the “dark side of the moon” of Dual Career, the situation in which athletes experience an high risk of a traumatic and unproductive exit from the sport’s world. In other words, the project pays attention to the last part of an athlete’s career, especially for non-professional athletes or for athletes not equipped with a safe “professional parachute” during the jump into the labour market. Acting this way means to focus on “pre-emptive exit strategy planning adoption”, on “evaluation and raising awareness about useful sport-related soft skills”, on “innovative exit-oriented training modules to be included in traditional federation’s paths”. This survey is a “small scale research” containing: a) a state of art of dual career in 5 Eu countries; b) a focus on sport-related transversal / non formal skills to be effectively spent in the labour market; c) a mix of interviews and desk research with athletes and former athletes.

Helping athletes start second careers

Drawing on skills acquired during sport careers, a project helped retired athletes to move into the labour market

Often after retiring the sport world, athletes have a hard time starting a new career, as sports skills don’t always translate into traditional jobs. The EU co-funded AFTERMATCH – Life Beyond Sport project helped athletes to see how they can use the competences developed during their sport careers and find a new career.

Massimo Guerra, a former Italian Serie A basketball player, said:

“I was fully aware that a sport career would not last forever. Sometimes you can hide this fact to yourself, but at a certain age you must deal with it, because sport does not motivate you to live all your life with what you carried.”

The project focused on athletes with high risk of traumatic or unproductive exit from the sport world, and conducted a survey across participating countries, which served as a base for the intervention model.

The result was an innovative training tool promoting transition into a post-sport career by recognising sports-related skills. This could be applied to three targets: (a) sport trainers, coaches, and managers; (b) teachers and professors, and (c) HR managers for public and private companies.

After implementing the tool, sport federations understood the importance of a dual career approach and coaches and other sport-related operators took on a larger role as educators, helping athletes start thinking about post-sport careers. Meanwhile, teachers and professors helped student athletes to see the link between their sport skills and academia, and fostered other skills. Employers increased their knowledge about the benefits of having employees with sport-generated skills, and hired more former athletes.
